LETTER V. from the National Merchant.

S I R,

HERE is an infinite Number of Maxims to be found in Authors of great Repute, who have wrote on Trade, which are not always infallible: In some Cases they may be true, but in other they are not so; nor have those Maxims any Weight or Authority with me, when they are not consistent with the Maxims laid down in my Letters N<sup>o</sup> 2, and 3, with which they ought always to square, and by which I would have them proved and examined before admitted for certain. — Thus, in the Dispute lately between the British Northern Colonies and our Sugar Islands, a Maxim found in most Writers, and generally received, was made use of, and abused, and false Consequence drawn from it. It was said, that

1. THAT Trade which employs our Shipping, takes off our Manufactures and superabundant Commodities, and receives either Money or Goods in Return for them, whereby a Balance is gained to us, must be valuable Trade, and ought not to be suppressed.

2. THAT the Northern Colony Trade to the French Sugar-Islands, was such a Trade. And

3. THEREFORE the Northern Colony Trade to those Islands ought not to be suppressed.

IT is well known this Matter was brought before both Houses of Parliament two or three successive Sessions, and that it occasioned great Contest both within and without Doors, ere it was determined; but at length, after being solemnly heard and debated in both Houses, a Bill passed, to suppress, in Effect, entirely the said Trade with the French Islands. Whilst this Bill was depending, I remember to have heard several Members of both Houses declare (I am sure truly,) That, as both the Northern and Southern Colonies justly claimed an equal Right to the Favour and Protection of the Legislature, they would with Pleasure and Alacrity afford the same to either; but that, in the present Case, there was a Difficulty which kept them at a Stand: For (said they) our Northern Colonies tell us, "If we pass the Bill, we destroy their Trade." And our Southern Colonies say, "If we do not pass the Bill, they are undone." — Must we believe them both? If we do, what ought then to be done?

I PRESUME, at present, it will give no Offence to either Side, if we say, that the Resolution which the Parliament at last took to pass the Bill, was founded on Reason, and for the publick Good, tho' contrary to the Conclusion made on the afore-mentioned Maxim. The Truth is, the said Maxim, tho' generally, is not always true, but will admit of Exceptions; and in this Point was justly over-ruled by the 10th Maxim in my Letter N<sup>o</sup> 3, viz.

SOME Trades, considered by themselves, may be look'd on as advantageous to a Nation; but when compared with others, will be found to be really detrimental; inasmuch as the Good they do will not countervail the Prejudices they occasion: Therefore such Trades are to be deemed disadvantageous, and, if they cannot be regulated, ought to be abolished.

HOWEVER, as many of the said Maxims, to be found here and there in Authors who have wrote on Trade, tho' not universally true, may give Light and afford Matter of Instruction, provided we allow them not too large an Extent, and keep them in Subordination to their Superiors; under such Caution, it may not be unuseful to transcribe some of them; before we proceed farther; and which I propose to send you in my next.

I am, S I R,

Your humble Servant,

The National Merchant.

From the Camp at Bruchsal, July 30.

THIS Day Prince Eugene received an Express from Vienna, with News that they have certain

Advice at Court that the Turks have been intirely defeated by the Persians, inasmuch that of 80,000 Men, of which the Ottoman Army consisted, Three-fourths had been killed, wounded, or taken Prisoners, among whom were most of the Turkish Generals or Chief Officers; that the Persians had also taken their military Chest, their Artillery and all their Ammunition; and that this has caused so great a Consternation at Constantinople, that the Sultan had thought it prudent to retire into the Country with his Court, and some Thousands of Janizaries.

The Imperialists have re-taken the little Island of the Rhine, which the French took the 4th Instant at Night, and found therein several Pieces of Cannon, and a Quantity of Ammunition.

Frankfort, July 31. It was reported, that the 28 Squadrons which Prince Eugene had detach'd towards Swabia, were to return to the Army; but we now hear that those Troops, which are on the Side of Nutemberg, are ordered to continue their March to meet the Russians in the Upper Palatinate, and to accompany them to the Army on the Rhine.

Worms, July 30. On the 28th at Night, a Party of German Hussars passed the Rhine between Mentz and Oppenheim, and carried off about 100 Horses that were grazing in the Meadows, the French that guarded them flying at their Approach. We are assured, that the French Army will shortly move towards the Rivulet of Spire, for the Convenience of Forage.

On the 27th there was so violent a Storm here and in the Neighbourhood, that the like has not been seen in the Memory of Man. It was mix'd with Hail-Stones as big as Pullets Eggs, which have entirely destroy'd all the Fruits of the Earth for some Leagues round. A great Number of Trees has been blown up by the Roots, abundance of Houses, both in Town and Country, thrown down or much damaged, and several People hurt, and Numbers of Cattle kill'd in the Country by the Hail.

Manheim, July 30. The 27th about 7 at Night, we had the same Hurricane here as at Worms, by which almost all our Chimneys were thrown down, our Glass Windows broke to Pieces, several Persons wounded, and a great many Cattle killed in the Country by the Hail-stones; and the very Planks belonging to our Merchants on the Side of the Neckar, were carried into the Air by the Violence of the Wind, as if they had been Leaves of Trees.

Inverness, July 18. Last Post brought us the agreeable News of the Hon. John Campbell of Manmore, Esq; his being appointed Lieutenant Colonel of the Inniskilling Regiment of Foot, commanded by Colonel Archibald Hamilton, a Part whereof are now quartered here. This News gave great Joy to all the Frazers and Well-wishers to the Family of Lovat in this Town, the Lord Lovat being married to a Sister of the said Colonel Campbell; and there being for many Ages a great Friendship between the Campbells and the Frazers, last Night all the Gentlemen of the Name of Frazer in this Place, and the Grants, Monroes and Cuthberts, &c. the Relations and Allies of the Family of Lovat, met, and invited all the Officers of the Corps, Garison, and Custom-house, with many other Gentlemen of the first Rank, to the Lord Lovat's Lodgings, where Bailie William Frazer, his Lordship's Landlord, and Merchant, had prepared an elegant Entertainment. There was great Plenty of Wine, when the Healths of his Majesty, the Queen, Prince, Duke, and all the Royal Family, were drank, with those of the Ministry, his Majesty's Forces by Sea and Land, Duke of Argyle, Earl of Ilay, General Wade, Colonel John Campbell, Lord Lovat, Colonel Hamilton, and the Corps; the Healths of the Frazers, Grants, Monroes, &c. and all the fast Friends of the Family of Argyle, with many other Loyal Toasts. There were large Bonfires, not only at my Lord Lovat's Lodging, but upon every Hill in his Lordship's extensive Country round this Town. During the Solemnity Musick play'd, Drums beat, and the private Men of the Company here were handsomely entertained, agreeable to their own Taste, with Barrels of Beer, which they drank to the Health of their new Commander. After the Gentlemen had staid several Hours at his Lordship's Lodgings, they, with the Musick playing before them, proceeded to the Market-cross, where was a Table covered, and the forefaid Healths repeated with Huzzas and Acclamations of Joy. The Night concluded with as much Satisfaction as ever was seen here on any Occasion. The next Evening also, the Rejoicings were continued at my Lord Lovat's House in the Country, and by almost all his Friends in the Neighbourhood.
